A close-up photograph of a light-colored wooden surface, possibly a workbench or floor, made of oriented strand board (OSB). A yellow measuring tape is stretched horizontally across the middle of the frame. Below the tape, a red horizontal line is visible, with a green circular fastener or pin attached to it on the left side. The background shows the textured, layered structure of the wood.

A photograph of a wooden surface, likely a workbench or floor, with a yellow measuring tape and a red line. The measuring tape is positioned vertically on the left side of the frame, showing measurements from 17 to 37 inches. The red line runs vertically down the center of the image. The wooden surface is made of oriented strand board (OSB) with a visible grain pattern. There are several small, dark, circular marks or holes along the red line, possibly from screws or nails. The background is a solid, light-colored wall.
